CONDENSED TELEGRAMS

A revolution is threatened at Panama.
Samuel J. Tilden called for Europe July 3d.
Another body has been found in the Memphis fire.
Rioting has been going on at Marseilles, France, for some days.
The report of the death of the Emperor of Morocco is contradicted.
The negotiations between Germany and the Vatican are at a dead lock.
It is proposed at Omaha to hold a grand musical festival there next October.

The Fall river, Mass., print works have suspended. Liabilities, $150,000.
The British Channel squadron has left Suda Bay, island of Crete, with sealed orders.

The Greek ministry have resigned, in consequence of a difference between them and the Premier.

The Missouri river is falling rapidly at Omaha, but the danger to property on the bank is not yet over.

Revenue collector Newman and his deputy were arrested at Omaha July 3d for alleged irregularities.

The Missouri river at Achison, Kansas, is higher than it has been for twelve years, and is doing a great deal of damage.

Ex-Governor Pacheco is prominently named at Washington for appointment to the recently revived office of Minister to Bolivia.

The sheep of California were depleted fully one-third by the storms and want of feed in that State last year.

President Hayes has notified the California delegation that he is unable to accept the invitation tendered him to attend the California State fair at Sacramento.

The stage coach from Deadwood to Hat Creek, Wyoming, was stopped by highwaymen Monday night, and three of the passengers were wounded by shots from the robbers.

The count of the votes cast in San Francisco at the recent constitutional election was only finished July 3d. While the Workingmen carry San Francisco by a heavy majority, the Non-Partisans elect the entire delegation at large, giving them control of the convention.

There are 40,000 Turkish troops in Bosnia and Herzegovina and 20,000 between Novi Bazar and Pristina. The Austrian army of occupation will consist of 134,000 men. No military resistance is anticipated, although the attitude of the population of both provinces is hostile.

Shot by a School Marm.
Considerable excitement was caused at Lincoln, Cal., Monday, news being brought into town that a prominent citizen named Phibrick had been shot and hurt by a Mrs. Mears. It seems, from what can be heard, that Phibrick is a school trustee of an adjoining district and Mrs. Mears is the teacher. The trustee and teacher had some difficulty, not yet explained, when she drew a revolver and attempted to shoot. He caught hold of her hand and turned the pistol so that he caught the ball in the leg above the knee.

Probably an Unnecessary Scare.
A Portland, Oregon, dispatch of July 3d says: Col. Lang arrived here last night from Wasco county and brings information that a good many people are coming into that place from different parts of Grant county in consequence of fear of the Indians. It is believed, however, to be an unnecessary scare. All resident Indians are perfectly quiet and friendly and the only danger that would arise would be from possible movement of hostiles trying to escape from General Howard.

The Berlin Congress.

The Berlin Congress will close its session in four, or, at most, six sittings. The final proceeding of the Congress will consist of the presentation of the main treaty, which the committee appointed to draw it up will submit, clause by clause. The progress made in the disposition of the questions at issue has been retarded by the severe comments of Russian and English generals. England has almost taken advantage of the generous nature of Count Schouvaloff. The Russian Minister desires peace, and has made marked concessions in limiting Bulgaria, and in regard to the straits, in deference to England's wishes. Should England, because of the fact that Russia has yielded thus much, grow impatient in her requests, and a reactive spirit dictate the diplomacy of Russia, the lesser powers will grow insolent in their demands, and thus prolong the sitting of this Congress, or practically defeat its principal objects.

FRIDAY, JULY 6, 1918.
EQUAL EDUCATION OF THE SEXES.

The University of London will, this fall, be thrown open to women in all its departments—law, medicine, literature and science, and women will receive the same degrees as men on completing the same studies. The new plan meets with the hearty approval and co-operation of every member of the faculty. The soundness of the theory of equal education for both sexes is receiving recognition from all sources, whose influence is of controlling value in determining the practical defects of this theory. The respective duties of man and woman are not so distinctive as one is often inclined to presume, nor is it politic, much less necessary, that their education should be widely different, either in character or amount. The moral law of our being, that we should develop the qualities of the mind and body to their fullest rational limit is alike incumbent upon man and woman. It is true that both are the counterpart of each other, and that in the intellectual life woman supplements man as truly as in the physical life. But the paths along which both pursue their way involve more things in common, and all supplemental knowledge, if imparted, leaves the recipient in the state of approximate complete information. Therefore, in order that due regard be had for the economy of time and the attainment of better results, each should have equal opportunities in the pursuit of knowledge. If the possession of knowledge strengthens, ennobles and beautifies the mind; if it gives it a wider range of thought, expands its views and conception of animate and inanimate nature, why should not she, who is man's companion, enjoy the same or an equal mental development for her own well being, and also the increased pleasure of her male companion.

The nearer woman is man's equal the better it is for both. Of course we do not hold that their knowledge should be identical, any more than it is possible or desirable that all men have identical knowledge. The "weaker vessel" should be relegated to the fur barriers of the past, and woman should be accorded the right to a full education with man. The more vigorous she is in mind and body, the better companion she is for man. Her transmissions to posterity are at least quite as great as those of man, and therefore the at least equal necessity for her symmetrical development of mind and body.

THE POTTER CASE.

The Potter committee has adjourned until next Wednesday. The sub-committee is still in session at New Orleans. Emile L. Weber gives contradictory testimony to Mrs. Jenks in regard to the Sherman letter. Eliza Pinkston, the lying negress, may testify before the sub-committee. There is some amusement of a kind to Republicans in seeing the Democrats discredited and making the party ridiculous in the eyes of the people, and yet for this folly the people pay $20,000. There will be a few hot-headed members of the untried party who will believe much of the testimony of those quick witnesses before the Potter committee; but the honest, intelligent Democrat is as disgusted with the Potter case as are the Republicans themselves. There is nothing of special interest, save a few quasi, silly and brilliant replies to Mrs. Jenks, in all the evidence yet given which reflects against the visiting statesmen, and especially John Sherman. Butler wants to hurt Hayes, and is willing to make a cat's paw of the Democratic party. The Democratic hot heads are within dunes to Butler's folly, and further, attracted by the ignis fatuus of campaign material, have drawn their party into an affair which is now rearing, and must necessarily react to the detriment of their party.

Because of poor health, Frank Kenyon has disposed of the Lyon County Times to Mr. T. E. Picotte, who has been for some time a reporter on the Virginia Chronicle. The future course of the Times has not yet been announced, but it will probably be a Democratic journal.

The Idaho mining company of Grass Valley, California, has declared a dividend of $7.50 per share, aggregating $13,350, payable July 3d. This makes the 107th regular dividend.

LETTER FROM AUSTIN.

Communism—Overthrow of the Kenyonites Predicted.

Editor Gazette: Communism, which took its name from the Paris mob which tried to play Samson and did really pull down one pillar, and which is made up in a large measure of the same element, imported or transported, with all its infidelity, ignorance and untamed, because uneducated, animal instincts, has been permitted to assume an attitude, owing to our liberal system, which is to-day a nuisance and disgrace, and it is an unnecessary terror to many. California is reaping the benefit of her supineness, and she is to have a dose of atheism, communism, argarianism and every other "ism" to be found outside the pale of well-regulated society and foreign to American ideas of government and social life, in the rabid mixtures to be assembled in a constitutional convention. Barbers and bootblacks, waiters and peddlers, horny-fisted mechanics, howling local politicians and mouthing.

SAND-LOT ORATORS.

Men whose study of constitutional law has perhaps extended to a Democratic leader, or a speech with a rope in it, have been chosen to revise the constitution of the great State of California. And many of these are foreigners, with the signatures of naturalization papers scarcely dry; maggots bred from the half-decayed carcass of Democracy. Any constitution they may frame must, of course, be ratified by the people; but if the people could permit the election of such a rabble, will they not be likely to sanction their action? Of course California and Nevada and most of the new States have a population so mixed that to exclude foreigners would be an impossibility, even were it wise, and where the majority of voters are of foreign birth—but that need not deliver the management of affairs over to a class of demagogues and political tramps. This way by of profane. I said that people were indulging in unnecessary fear of communism, and I repeat it. I have lived long enough to see worse diseases effectually cured. I have seen the rise and fall of more than one such movement; movements inaugurated by political wire-pullers for selfish ends, and when those ends were reached, falling to pieces from more innate weakness consequent on the absence of any cohesion or sound principle to bind them together. I remember which shook the country somewhere about 1835-5-7, a real workingmen's movement, which sent many representatives to State legislatures, and feasted others with fat local offices; but ignorant cupidity and itching fingers and palms ruined them almost to a man, and the party was forgotten. Prominent among the agitators was a man who lives to-day, I think, in Plumas county, California, and who has been known as an agrarian and general stirrer up of strikes ever since he came to the coast. He was, in the days I speak of, a hand-loom check weaver, a little, unwashed, unshaven, foul-mouthed Irishman, who made speeches—with a brogue to them—in public, in dirty check shirt, and with hands and face stained with blue dye from web and wool, just as he left his loom. He would have played sans culotte if the law had not fortunately compelled the wearing of breeches, to show his indifference for the conventionalities of blasted capitalists, and, soi disant, refined society. He was a

ONE OF THOSE SPASMS

RANK OUTSPOKEN INFIDEL, too, a perfect bonnet rouge from Tipperary, and at all infidel meetings he used to exhibit his little boy, now a District Judge in California, to show the admiring crowds that what he professed he intended to teach his children. George M. Dallas had just returned from the Russian mission, and as a prominent and leading Democrat these blue-shirted workingmen made him the offer of their votes on condition of his declaring for the workingmen, still adhering to Democratic principles. George M. was a Democrat but not a demagogue, and besides he was a profound lawyer and a gentleman, and he refused. As a consequence a meeting was called on the spot on which the crowd chanted a reading of the Declaration of Independence in 1876, and there, under the shadow of Independence Hall, this vulgar scarcely naturalized foreigner read George M. Dallas out of the Democratic party—a man whose ancestors had been foremost among those who secured to the vulgar old man the privilege of opening his mouth on that sacred spot. But the movement died out, as all such movements die, and the little weaver was soon lost sight of, as well as his party. Imagine my surprise at encountering the old demagogue a year or so ago in of Plumas county. His name, when I knew him first, was Farrel, but I suppose he or the family has inhaled some notions of the value of a name, and so transposed a couple of letters. I may say of the men whom that movement elevated one shoemaker distinguished himself for his ignorance, another sold himself to a railroad corporation, and a third, a quack doctor, I heard inside of six months yelled by newsboys around the streets as a traitor, and that the only man who ever profited by it is living to-day in Washington, and editing the Democratic Review. I refer to Thomas B. Florence.

THE BOAT BUILDER'S SON, as he was called in campaigns, when he represented the district now owned and occupied by Sam Randall. He was a hatter by trade, and I remember his old sign which hung many a day on the site of the building whence Jay Cooke hurled "innumerable woes" over the land. It read, "Thomas B. Florence, Practical Hatter." He was known as "Handsome Tom," and has survived all his old companions in arms who threatened the overthrow of our whole political, commercial and social system in these old almost forgotten days. And so will DIE OUT this spasm which is spreading over the land to-day. "It had a violent beginning, and thou shalt see an answerable sequestration." It can no more exist than Ireland could govern herself. It carries the seeds of dissolution around with it, and will go up by spontaneous combustion, fouling and amearing all around it. But such little tempests purify the air, and open men's eyes to the wants of the times. Vesuvius puffs and fumes now and then, but it never destroyed but those two old cities, and never will again, for no one will build on the same spot. MMCCXL.

Austin, Nevada, July 3, 1878.

Last year the Reverend Beecher said that workingmen could live on one dollar a day and support their families, and that if necessary to do so they could subsist on bread and water. Naturally enough he incurred the displeasure of the sons of toil. He has lately made the matter worse by asserting that a little starvation now and then is a means of grace.

We would modestly suggest, that a little starvation might be a means of grace in the eyes of corporated wealth and general misfortune to this country. Jenks' wife is a blonde. Grey eyes and pretty little feet and hands; and she says General Butler, "is just beautiful, and when he smiles he is perfectly lovely."
